No Justification

With the publishing of the Penkovsky Papers (not complete at this writing), I can find no justification for the support of the UN, the consular treaty, the nuclear test ban treaty, the cultural exchange program nor the hot line to Moscow!

I am sure the information contained in the Penkovsky Papers has been in the hands of the State Department, the administration, the CIA, the secretary of defense, the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, the Congress and a fettered FBI. In the past we have been able to admit that liberal and socialists and intellectuals have been guiding the policies of our country, but somehow today those names do not quite fit these individuals. To borrow from one of your editorials, with such friends of the United States, who needs enemies?

The question today is not why are we fighting Communism in Vietnam but rather by what miracle are we not engaged in a last-ditch fight—door to door, street to street, town to town—right here in the United States?
